

Mr. Christofer Harristhal,

Here are the login and logout times for David Ritz going back to May 1st, 2005, including the remote IP address where the connection originated from.

As I stated to you on the phone, jacobs.geeks.org is a personal system and it is on the Internet. It is a personal server handling email for myself and people I know, and since it is a UNIX system, I allow remote logins to people.

Also, I stated that Geeks Organizations is not a business or any organized entity, it is a made up name so that I could register a .org domain back in the day when it was required that you be an organization (usually non-profit).

There isn't any type of relationship between David Ritz and Geeks.ORG, he is just someone who does work on the anti-spam front and has been on the Internet for many years working on tracking down spammers.

Beyond that, I do not know Mr. Ritz.
